Audio Acoustics

The UK's Audio Acoustics made a splash with the Sapphire Ti-C SE loudspeakers ($69,000 per pair). The construction was heroic, the finish quality spotless, and the technology impressive. And that sound! It was ethereal. Female vocals floated effortlessly between the speakers in a way that seemed completely detached from the system reproducing them. The highs were sparkling and free from glare, and the speakers seemed to work great despite the small room. The rest of the system comprised Wavac 833 monoblock amplifiers, a dCS Verdi SACD transport, a Weiss Medea DAC, and Wow Resonance cables by Audio Acoustics. This was one rare case where a hideously expensive system sounded like a million bucks. Although this is the first commercial offering from Audio Acoustics, we hope to see – and hear – more.
